

I'm not robot!

The launch of a major Windows 10 update isn't the end of a process — it's really just the beginning. As soon as one of Microsoft's feature updates (such as Windows 10 version 21H2) is released, the company quickly gets to work on improving it by fixing bugs, releasing security patches, and occasionally adding new features. In this story we summarize what you need to know about each update released to the public for the most recent versions of Windows 10 — versions 21H2, 21H1, 20H2, and 2004. (Microsoft releases updates for those four versions together.) For each build, we've included the date of its initial release and a link to Microsoft's announcement about it. The most recent updates appear first. If you're still using an earlier version of Windows 10 or of Windows, see the Microsoft support site for info about updates to Windows 10 1909, 1809, 1803, 1709, 1703, 1607, 1511, the initial version of Windows 10 released in July 2015, and Windows 7. And if you're looking for information about Insider Program previews for upcoming feature releases of Windows 10, see "Windows 10 Insider Previews: A guide to the builds," "Updates to Windows 10 versions 20H2, 21H1, and 21H2," "KB5015878 (OS Builds 19042.1665, 19043.1865, and 19044.1865) Preview Release date: July 26, 2022 This build lets you receive urgent notifications when focus assist is on and restores functionality for Windows Autopilot deployment scenarios that are affected by the security mitigation for hardware reuse. It also fixes a variety of bugs, including one that prevented troubleshooters from opening, one that caused certain docking stations to lose internet connectivity when waking from Sleep mode, and one that improves the reliability of a push-button reset after an OS upgrade. There are three known issues in this update, including one in which IE mode tabs in Microsoft Edge might stop responding when a site displays a modal dialog box. In another issue, after installing this update, some devices might be unable to open the Start menu. On affected devices, clicking or selecting the Start button or using the Windows key on your keyboard might have no effect. In the final issue, devices with Windows installations created from custom offline media or custom ISO images might have Microsoft Edge Legacy removed by this update, but not automatically replaced by the new Microsoft Edge. (Get more info about KB5015878 Preview.) KB5015807 (OS Builds 19042.1826, 19043.1826, and 19044.1826) Date: July 12, 2022 This build addresses an issue that redirects the PowerShell command output so that transcript logs do not contain any output of the command. That means the decrypted password is lost. The build also includes improvements made in the KB5014666 update. This build has three known issues, including one in which devices with Windows installations created from custom offline media or custom ISO images might have Microsoft Edge Legacy removed by this update, but not automatically replaced by the new Microsoft Edge. (Get more info about KB5015807.) KB5014666 (OS Builds 19042.1806, 19043.1806, and 19044.1806) Preview/Release Date: June 28, 2022 This build adds IP address auditing for incoming Windows Remote Management (WinRM) connections in security event 4262 and WinRM event 91. This addresses an issue that fails to log the source IP address and machine name for a remote PowerShell connection. The build also includes several new Print and Scan features. The build also fixes a number of bugs, including one that prevented the Snip & Sketch app from capturing a screenshot or from opening using the keyboard shortcut (Windows logo key + Shift + S). This build has three known issues, including one in which devices with Windows installations created from custom offline media or custom ISO images might have Microsoft Edge Legacy removed by this update, but not automatically replaced by the new Microsoft Edge. (Get more info about KB5014666 Preview.) KB5016139 (OS Builds 19042.1767, 19043.1767, and 19044.1767) Release date: June 20, 2022 This out-of-band build, which is only available for Windows devices that use ARM processors, fixes a bug that prevented Windows ARM-based devices from signing in using Azure Active Directory (AAD). Apps and services that use AAD to sign in, such as VPN connections, Microsoft Teams, and Microsoft Outlook, might also be affected. This build has four known issues, including one in which devices with Windows installations created from custom offline media or custom ISO images might have Microsoft Edge Legacy removed by this update, but not automatically replaced by the new Microsoft Edge. In another, Windows devices might be unable to use the Wi-Fi hotspot feature. When attempting to use the hotspot feature, the host device might lose the connection to the internet after a client device connects. (Get more info about KB5016139.) KB5014699 (OS Builds 19042.1766, 19043.1766, and 19044.1766) Release date: June 14, 2022 This build includes a wide variety of security updates. For details, see Microsoft's Security Update Guide. What IT needs to know: Because this is a security update, it should be applied relatively soon. Over the next few weeks, check for reports about problematic issues, and if all seems well, apply the update. There are three known issues in this update, including one in which devices with Windows installations created from custom offline media or custom ISO images might have Microsoft Edge Legacy removed by this update, but not automatically replaced by the new Microsoft Edge. (Get more info about KB5014699.) KB5014023 (OS Builds 19042.1741, 19043.1741, and 19044.1741) Preview/Release date: June 2, 2022 This build fixes several bugs, including one that prevented Excel or Outlook from opening, one that slowed down file copying, and one that prevented internet shortcuts from updating. There are three known issues in this update, including one that prevented the Snip & Sketch app from capturing a screenshot or from opening using the keyboard shortcut (Windows logo key + Shift + S). This build has three known issues, including one in which devices with Windows installations created from custom offline media or custom ISO images might have Microsoft Edge Legacy removed by this update, but not automatically replaced by the new Microsoft Edge. (Get more info about KB5014023 Preview.) KB5015020 (OS Build 19042.1708) Release date: May 19, 2022 This out-of-band build fixes two bugs: one that could cause authentication failures for some services on a server or client after you install the May 10, 2022 update on domain controllers, and another that could prevent the installation of Microsoft Store apps when you enable Control-flow Enforcement. There are three known issues in this update, including one in which devices with Windows installations created from custom offline media or custom ISO images might have Microsoft Edge Legacy removed by this update, but not automatically replaced by the new Microsoft Edge. (Get more info about KB5015020.) KB5013942 (OS Builds 19042.1706, 19043.1706, and 19044.1706) Release date: May 10, 2022 This build includes a wide variety of security updates. For details, see Microsoft's Security Update Guide and the May 2022 Security Updates notes. What IT needs to know: Because this is a security update, it should be applied relatively soon. Over the next few weeks, check for reports about problematic issues, and if all seems well, apply the update. There are three known issues in this update, including one in which devices with Windows installations created from custom offline media or custom ISO images might have Microsoft Edge Legacy removed by this update, but not automatically replaced by the new Microsoft Edge. (Get more info about KB5013942.) KB5011831 (OS Builds 19042.1682, 19043.1682, and 19044.1682) Preview/Release date: April 25, 2022 This build fixes a wide variety of bugs, including one that caused a remote desktop session to close or a reconnection to stop responding while waiting on the accessibility shortcut handler (sethc.exe), another that that displayed a black screen for some users when they sign in or sign out, and another that prevented you from changing a password that has expired when you sign in to a Windows device. (Get more info about KB5011831 Preview.) KB5012599 (OS Builds 19042.1645, 19043.1645, and 19044.1645) Release date: April 12, 2022 This build includes a wide variety of security updates. For details, see Microsoft's Security Update Guide and the April 2022 Security Updates notes. What IT needs to know: Because this is a security update, it should be applied relatively soon. Over the next few weeks, check for reports about problematic issues, and if all seems well, apply the update. There are three known issues in this update, including one in which devices with Windows installations created from custom offline media or custom ISO images might have Microsoft Edge Legacy removed by this update, but not automatically replaced by the new Microsoft Edge. (Get more info about KB5012599.) KB5011543 (OS Builds 19042.1620, 19043.1620, and 19044.1620) Preview/Release date: March 22, 2022 This build introduces Search highlights, which display notable moments about each day, including holidays, anniversaries, and other events globally and in your region. To see more details at a glance, hover or click on the illustration in the search box. There are also a variety of small new features, including a new policy that expands an app's top three notifications by default in the Action Center for apps that send Windows notifications. It displays multiple notifications that you can interact with simultaneously. In addition, there are a wide variety of bug fixes, including for a bug that stopped Microsoft Outlook's offline search from returning recent emails, and another that prevented the User Account Control (UAC) dialog from correctly showing the application that is requesting elevated privileges. There are three known issues in this update, including one in which devices with Windows installations created from custom offline media or custom ISO images might have Microsoft Edge Legacy removed by this update, but not automatically replaced by the new Microsoft Edge. (Get more info about KB5011543 Preview.) KB5011487 (OS Builds 19042.1586, 19043.1586, and 19044.1586) Release date: March 8, 2022 This build fixes a bug that occurs when you attempt to reset a Windows device and its apps have folders that contain reparse data, such as Microsoft OneDrive or OneDrive for Business. When you select Remove everything, files that have been downloaded or synced locally from Microsoft OneDrive might not be deleted. It also includes a wide variety of security updates. For details, see Microsoft's Security Update Guide and the March 2022 Security Updates notes. What IT needs to know: Because this is a security update, it should be applied relatively soon. Over the next few weeks, check for reports about problematic issues, and if all seems well, apply the update. There are three known issues in this update, including one in which devices with Windows installations created from custom offline media or custom ISO images might have Microsoft Edge Legacy removed by this update, but not automatically replaced by the new Microsoft Edge. (Get more info about KB5011487.) KB5010415 (OS Builds 19042.1566, 19043.1566, and 19044.1566) Preview/Release date: February 15, 2022 The build lets you share cookies between Microsoft Edge Internet Explorer mode and Microsoft Edge, and adds support for hot adding and the removal of non-volatile memory (NVM) namespaces. It also fixes a wide variety of bugs, including one that affected the Windows search service and occurred when you queried using the proximity operator, and one that caused the Remote Desktop Service (RDS) server to become unstable when the number of signed in users exceeds 100. This prevented you from accessing published applications using RDS on Windows Server 2019. There are three known issues in this update, including one in which devices with Windows installations created from custom offline media or custom ISO images might have Microsoft Edge Legacy removed by this update, but not automatically replaced by the new Microsoft Edge. (Get more info about KB5010415 Preview.) KB5010342 (OS Builds 19042.1526, 19043.1526, and 19044.1526) Release date: February 8, 2022 The build fixes a bug that causes a Lightweight Directory Access Protocol (LDAP) modify operation to fail if the operation contains the SamAccountName and UserAccountControl attribute. It also includes a wide variety of security updates. For details, see Microsoft's Security Update Guide and the February 2022 Security Updates notes. What IT needs to know: Because this is a security update, it should be applied relatively soon. Over the next few weeks, check for reports about problematic issues, and if all seems well, apply the update. There are three known issues in this update, including one in which devices with Windows installations created from custom offline media or custom ISO images might have Microsoft Edge Legacy removed by this update, but not automatically replaced by the new Microsoft Edge. (Get more info about KB5010342.) KB5009596 (OS Builds 19042.1503, 19043.1503, and 19044.1503) Preview/Release date: January 25, 2022 The build fixes a variety of bugs, including one that stops printing or prints the wrong output when you print using USB on Windows 10 version 2004 or later, and another that causes functioning Bluetooth devices to stop working when you attempt to connect to a non-functioning Bluetooth device. It also adds a reminder to Internet Explorer 11 that notifies you about its upcoming retirement. There are three known issues in this update, including one in which devices with Windows installations created from custom offline media or custom ISO images might have Microsoft Edge Legacy removed by this update, but not automatically replaced by the new Microsoft Edge. (Get more info about KB5009596.) KB5010793 (OS Builds 19042.1469, 19043.1469, and 19044.1469) Release date: January 17, 2022 This out-of-band build fixes several bugs, including one that caused IP Security (IPSEC) connections that contain a Vendor ID to fail. VPN connections using Layer 2 Tunneling Protocol (L2TP) or IP security Internet Key Exchange (IPSEC IKE) could have also been affected. It also fixed a bug that could cause Windows Servers to restart unexpectedly after installing the January 11, 2022 update on domain controllers (DCs). There are three known issues in this update, including one in which devices with Windows installations created from custom offline media or custom ISO images might have Microsoft Edge Legacy removed by this update, but not automatically replaced by the new Microsoft Edge. (Get more info about KB5010793.) KB5009543 (OS Builds 19042.1466, 19043.1466, and 19044.1466) Release date: January 11, 2022 The build fixes a bug in the Japanese Input Method Editors (IME) and includes a wide variety of security updates. For details, see Microsoft's Security Update Guide and the January 2022 Security Updates notes. What IT needs to know: Because this is a security update, it should be applied
